The Expo Chicago (<https://www.artnews.com/t/expo-chicago/>) art fair has announced the more than 140 galleries from 25 countries that will participate in its upcoming 2022 edition, scheduled to take place at Navy Pier April 7-10.

This edition of Expo Chicago will be the first after the fair canceled both its 2020 and 2021 editions because of the pandemic. In the run-up to the 2022 fair, the organization announced that it would expand its museum purchase prize (<https://www.artnews.com/art-news/market/expo-chicago-northern-trust-purchase-prize-2022-1234610697/>), which is sponsored by Northern Trust, and that it would convene museum directors (<https://www.artnews.com/art-news/market/expo-chicago-museum-directors-summit-1234615502/>) for a summit to discuss “institutional reinvention.”

This year's exhibitor list includes leading galleries like Kasmin, DC Moore, Lühring Augustine, Nara Roesler, Vielmetter Los Angeles, and Jessica Silverman Gallery, as well as several galleries from Chicago including Gray, Kavi Gupta, Rhona Hoffman, Mariane Ibrahim, and Corbett vs. Dempsey. First-time participants include Michael Werner Gallery, Petzel Gallery, Foxy Production, and Hales Gallery.

In an email, Tony Karman, Expo Chicago's president and director, said, "After two years, two postponements, numerous shifts in the art fair calendar, and a rapidly-evolving art world ecology, I am grateful for the unwavering support of both our regional and greater international art communities as we welcome the world this April, as we have done so many times in the past. I am confident about our future and our ability to be a partner and catalyst with our international exhibitors, collectors, curators, artists, and institutions as we move forward together into the future."

In addition to its main display for galleries, Expo Chicago also includes thematic sections: Profile (for single-artist installations or themed booths), Editions + Books, Special Exhibitions (for nonprofit organizations), and Exposure (for solo- or two-artist presentations by galleries in operation for 10 years or fewer, to be curated this year by Humberto Moro, who was recently appointed as deputy director of the Dia Art Foundation).

In a statement, Moro said, "With a special attention to Latin America, this year's Exposure galleries bring works in many mediums by creators from all parts of the world, who are navigating the complexities of the past years. I'm so thrilled to present a section which will resonate with both specialists and the public, and encourage both discovery and delight."
